A HOG-KILLING RECORD

INDIANAPOLIS HOLDS ONE FOR THE than to amuse the men. 1896 SUMMER SEASON.

Increase Proportionately Larger than at Any Other Packing Point-Knight & Jillson's New Building.

Since March 1, the beginning of the summer packing season, the Indianapolis packing houses have killed 425,000 hors, against 267,000 in the corresponding period of 1895. At the fifteen points reporting the ousiness of the packing louses, there have been killed 8,320,000 hogs, against 6,785,000 in the corresponding period of 895, an increase of 1,535,000 this year. The increase at Indianapolis is in proportion larger than at any other packing point. The large increase in number of hogs killed means larger holdings of hog products proportionately, as so abundant and cheap was grain the hogs were better fatted and weighed more than in any other summer packing season for the last ten years.

Using Large Quantities of Corn. Said one of the members of the largest firms lealing in grain in the city: "At no time in the history of Indianapolis has it been as important a market for corn. It has fallen as a wheat market, but has made great strides as a corn market." He estimates that market, but has made great strides as a corn market." He estimates that this market requires sixty to seventy carloads of corn a day to keep it supplied. This includes the corn required for the cerealine mills, the hominy mills, the starch works and two or three other smaller industries of that character. The grain merchants are handling large quantities of corn. The stock yards are large buyers, and the sale stables require large quantities. The demand for this one cereal is increasing with each year, and consequently this market is attracting a good consequently this market is attracting a good deal of attention, as it requires the best grades of corn for the manufacture of the cercaline products Indianapolis industries turn out.

A QUARREL WITH JONES

THE DEMOCRATIC STATE NOMINEES HOLD A CONFERENCE.

Insist Fusion Shall Not Be Accom-While Populist State

Ticket Is Still in Existence.

It is a little difficult to properly estimate the developments of the last week in Indiana. The two events of importance were the deal by which the Populists put out a combination ticket for electors and the decison of the sound-money Democrats not to put a State ticket in the field. The deal with the Populists has caused two rows, one in the Popocratic and one in the Populist camp. The Populist committee of thirteen, to which the State convention had delegated power to make an electoral ticket, yielded to pressure brought to bear by the Populist and Popocratic national committees and put out a combination electoral ticket, pulling down the straight Populist electoral ticket it had put out a week before. The combination ticket contains ten of the Popocratic electors and five Populists, three of whom have heretofore been in the field as congressional candidates. The Popocrats, on the other hand, have yielded nothing. Mr. Jones's national committee is endeavoring with all its might to force the Indiana State committee to accept these terms of fusion, but the State committee declines to do so because the Populist State ticket was not taken down. The State canlidates who have been furnishing all the money that the State committee has had to prosecute the campaign with suspect that the Bryan managers are willing and anxious to sacrifice them in order to pull Bryan through in Indiana, and they do not propose to be sacrificed. They say some 1,768 yards/Silkaline, 10c and salty things about the national committee and particularly about J. G. Johnson, of Kansas, who came here to promote the fusion deal and then returned to Chicago declaring that fusion had Leen accomplished in a manner satisfactory to both sides. On this proposition Chairman Martin, of the State committee, is with the State candidates, and the Populists will not get any expense money while their State ticket is in the field. Whatever funds they get to prosecute their campaign they must get from Senator Jones's snap at Chicago.

In the Populist ranks the deal has caused the biggest kind of a row. The middle-ofhe-road men, led by Charles X. Mathews, editor of the Nonconformist, the national organ of the party, are loud in their denunciation of the deal. They declare that it was purely a mercantile transaction, that their committee of thirteen simply sold out and betrayed Watson at the behest of the national committee. The deal was made in testing against it, and, no matter what the national committee will demand, the Indiana Populists regard Watson as their leader, and they idolize him. He is coming about ten days ago. Mrs. Garver was very here to speak one day next week, and it ill all day Saturday and Saturday night. is expected he will say some very snarp things about the national committee and and owing to vomiting spells was obliged the fusion deal in Indiana. Nearly all of to leave her bed several times during the the candidates on the State ticket are middle-of-the-road men, and they are leading the revolt against the fusion deal.

With these two elements in the two perties up in arms against the combination, it seems likely that the Bryan managers will lose more than they will gam by the manner in which the Populists were handled last Tuesday.

The decision of the National Democrats not to put a State ticket in the field is interpreted by the Popocrats as a sign of weakness, and the declaration is made that not enough men could be found willing to assume the burden of a campaign to make up a State ticket. This is not the case. The leaders of the National movement, while they believe that a State ticket, if it had been placed in the field a month ago, might have added some strength to their movement, are convinced that if it were undertaken now it would accomplish nothing, but might drive away some of their strength among men who have per-sonal friends on the silver Democratic State ticket and would absorb in working up county primaries and the State convention energies that might better be used in

In no State in the Union has the rapid growth of sound-money sentiment among railroad employes had more effect than in Indiana. There are over thirty thousand railroad men in the State and a very large majority of these have been Democrats in the past. It is estimated that fully 90 per ent, of them will vote for sound money, The vigor with which they have been organizing sound-money clubs and making public demonstratons of their position has been one of the surprising features of the campaign, and the cry of coercion raised by the Bryan people has had no greater effect

STATE CANDIDATES REBEL.

Insist Populists Must Pull Off State The candidates on the Popocratic State ticket held a long conference at the State committee rooms yesterday morning. Among those in attendance were B. F. Shively, nominee for Governor; S. M. Ralston, for Secretary of State; Joseph T. Fanning, for Auditor, and J. G. McNutt, for Attorney-general. The topic that occupied their attention was the effort to force them into fusion with the Populists on the terms proposed by the latter. The opinion was unanimously against yielding anything further to the Populists, and Chairman Martin will so inform the national headquarters, year-old daughter says that there had been declaring that the Indiana State committee

Just look what a senseless proposition it is the national committee is trying to force upon us," said one of the candidates after the conference. "Last election the Demo-crats cast 238,000 votes in Indian, and the Populists cast not quite 30,000, just about one-eighth as many. Yet they demand onethird of the electors, and they already have four, or a little more than one-third of the congressional nominees, and in the legisla-tive fusions they have all the best of it. Mr. Jones can make up his mind that we shall not budge an inch from our position. John Gilbert Shanklin, Indiana member of the national Popocratic committee, arrived too late to attend the conference. "I do not know much about the details of the fusion," said he, "for I left last Tuesday before anything had been accomplished. Personally I am in favor of fusion. The Populists are entitled to a good deal, and though they have already got much, they are entitled to what they have. I hope candidacy yesterday he replied: "I shall come before the Legislature only in case Senator Voorhees is not a candidate, which I think will probably be the case. His health, as you know, has been very bad, and is not improving."

A SHAWL ON THE BRIDGE

MRS. PHILIP GARVER BELIEVED TO HAVE DROWNED HERSELF.

Hundreds of People Watch Searchers Drag the River-Her Mother Committed Suicide Years Ago.

Mrs. Philip Garver, of No. 152 Michigan street, Haughville, disappeared from home esterday morning, about 4 o'clock, and her family believes she committed suicide by jumping into White river from the Michigan-street bridge. The bridge and the banks of the river for several blocks below the bridge were crowded during the afternoon with hundreds of curious spectators, who came to watch the searching parties that were at work dragging the river.

Garver recently purchased the saloon at face of a telegram from Watson pro- the northeast corner of Michigan street and King avenue, and he and his family took up their residence at this location ill all day Saturday and Saturday night, night, and consequently the other members told her husband she was obliged to go outside of the house and asked him if he would go with her. Almost immediately after telling her that he would do so he again went to sleep. The little twelve-year-old daughter says her mother put on an old wrapper that she usually wore around the house, and, putting a shawl around her, left the house alone. This is the last the family saw of her, but a citizen of the suburb, who passed the place about 5 o'clock, says he saw Mrs. Garver walking on King avenue at that hour, and he is the last About 6 o'clock yesterday morning a young man, who was crossing the Michigan-street bridge on his way to work, found bridge near the west middle pier. He took the shawl back to L. W. Gilberson's grocery store, just west of the bridge, and, teiling Mrs. Giberson where he had found it, said that if no one called for it during the day he would stop when he returned from work and take it with him. As soon as the Garver family discovered that Mrs. for her, and shortly before noon they identified the shawl that had been found on the bridge as the one worn by her when she eft home, and, being unable to find any trace of her, began working on the theory that she had drowned herself. The available boats on the river were called into service and two boats were also brought over in a wagon from the canal, and all yesterday afternoon searching parties rowed up and down the river with drags, trying to locate and secure the body, they believe lies somewhere beneath the waters. The searching parties were persistent and labored steadily all the afternoon and did not give over their task until darkness made further work dangerous to the workers. They failed to find any signs of the body, but the work will be resumed again this morning. As the Garvers are newcomers in the suburb and very little is known about them, some of the people advanced the theory that there had probably been a family quarrel Saturday night and as a result the woman had taken her life. The twelveno quarrel of any kind, and that her mother will yield nothing further to the Populists A relative says he thinks the woman's mind was sick on that night, as stated before unless their State ticket comes down, and was temporarily unbalanced and caused her this cannot be, because nobody has any to take her life, if she really has committed suicide. He also stated to the Journal that suicide. He also stated to the Journal that Mrs. Girver has for several years past been troubled with severe headaches, which greatly distressed her when they occurred, and that probably a repetition of these beadaches was the cause of Saturday's ill ress and for the time unbalanced her mind About thirteen years ago her mother, Mrs. Feld, then the proprietress of the Germania House, committed suicide during a spell of sickness by cutting several arteries. bleeding to death before a physician arrived to save her.

THE FATHER TOOK THE GIRL. But Allen Canatsy Claims He Is Entitled to Her.

Yesterday afternoon Allen Canatsy sought the aid of the police in securing possession of his wife's niece, Flora E. J. Canatsys agreed to do with the consent of the child's father, who then had no home for it. The child is now four years old and is like a daughter to its adopted parents. About eighteen months ago Schlueter married May Schaffner and sought to get pos-session of his child, but the Canatsys refused to surrender her. He frequently visited the child, however. Yesterday Canatsy says the father called at his home, 612 South Meridian street, to see his child. He took her out to get her some candy and did not return. Canatsy went to Schlueter's home, 364 West New

He says he will institute legal proceedings to get the child back, alleging that the present Mrs. Schlueter is not a fit person to have the custody of the child and that he is the rightful guardian by the consent of both parents.
